We know how to welcome walkers

It's official - walkers are welcome in Stroud.

The town council supported an application to become a national Walkers are Welcome town.

The status helps to ensure that footpaths and facilities for walkers are maintained in good condition, benefiting local people as well as visitors.

The council set aside funding through the footpath budget to support walking in the town and helped collect 250 signatures needed to demonstrate community backing to the idea.

Public speaks out on hospital move

Hundreds turn out as council hosts meeting

Hundreds of residents turned out to express their fears about proposed changes to NHS services in Stroud.

More than 350 people packed the Subscription Rooms to discuss plans for a social enterprise company to take over the running of Stroud General Hospital.

The meeting was hosted by Stroud Town Council.

Mayor John Marjoram said the town council had decided to host the meeting because of councillors' concerns that the changes to NHS services were being brought about without our knowledge.

"The town council is wholly behind a full blooded NHS," said Mayor Marjoram. "We urge people to get involved. With people power we can stop these changes."

Plans have been agreed by NHS Gloucestershire for Stroud General to be run by Gloucestershire Care Services Community Interest Company, with NHS-funded care, from October 1.

Caroline Molloy, of Stroud Against the Cuts, said there had been no consultation with the public about the changes and that there were fears it was simply a cost-cutting exercise.

There were also concerns raised that staff were not properly consulted.

Penny Harris, chief executive designate of the social enterprise Gloucestershire Care Services Community Interest Company, said that there had not been a public consultation because there would not be changes in the level of services offered.

The changes, she said, were purely organisational and that the social enterprise company was committed to the former NHS staff.

Other speakers included Stroud MP Neil Carmichael, Tanya Palmer of Unison, Dr Phillip Fielding, a GP and vice-chairman of the county's Local Medical Committee and Linda Prosser of NHS Gloucestershire.

The meeting was chaired by Canon John James.

Speakers explained the plans for moving the health services to a social enterprise company.

Opposition speakers raised concerns about what would happen to the services.

The audience, in a show of hands, voted overwhelmingly against the plans.

Working together to make us bloom
 Stroud's Green Spaces team hopes to find gold at the end of the rainbow - Britain in Bloom gold.

The team worked flat out in preparation for judging day. They are responsible for the 24 green and open spaces throughout Stroud and countless tubs and beds. Their crowning glory is the large floral display in Park Gardens.

"Stroud in Bloom is a team effort by everyone in the community," said Green Spaces manager Jim Mathison.

News in brief

All aboard the Stroud Special

September sees the launch of The Stroud Special train service, bringing visitors to see what makes Stroud so special.

The four-week project will encourage people from the London area to catch off-peak trains to Stroud to enjoy the festivals.

Businesses, the district and town councils, and the Chamber of Commerce are some of the groups working together to make this happen.

Dog surgery

We will be hosting a dog surgery with Stroud District Council's dog wardens on Tuesday October 11 from 11.30am-1.30pm.

Please feel free to drop into our office in London Road.

Our new look

About Town has a new look - including a new masthead. It is an artist's interpretation of the skyline of Stroud with several views incorporated into the finished look.

Cemetery plans

Work has begun to enhance Stroud's New Cemetery.

Our Green Spaces team is making the cemetery more accessible by removing some kerbstones laid without permission.

Last year we wrote to 137 plot holders asking them to help improve access for other users. More than 65 of these plots were modified.

We made a final appeal giving families until June to make changes.

Now we have started work to modify the remaining plots to ensure everyone has safe access to all the cemetery.

It will be finished in the autumn. Once complete the cemetery will have enhanced open space.

Please contact our office if you have any concerns about the alterations.
